

Into the Sun

KevinSilvia.net

I could not help getting up put my shoes on

Running outside into the sun

I tried to take it tangibly into my hands

So I could touch it just one time

And I can't wait till the work is done

Then I can run outside again into the sun

Sometimes I don't exactly see it all

Too much on my mind

But how could I not notice?

I must be totally blind

I put off my life for a short time,

Looked around at the earth, and couldn't believe it.

I hope you can see it

That same way I did

What a beautiful sight

It's like all that time, and

What a moment

Into the sun

Into the sun

When I looked at the clouds

I could have sworn they were smiling at me

I looked at the trees

I thought they were speaking to me

Saying "The sky alone is testament that

God is here now everywhere now"

I cannot help hoping that someday I'll always see the sun this way.